A report from Frankfort says Gov. Beckham will recommend to the Legislature to amend the Constitution so as to provide for removing the State Capitol from Frankfort. It is to be hoped that he will, and that Lexington will be selected for the place. It is better suited than any other city in the State. Its railroad facilities are unequaled and here hotel accommodations are adepuate and beauty of landscape unsurpassed.

What the farmer needs is to work diligently on a dust mulch. It is impossible for him to cover his cornfields with canvas, but he can by constant plowing form a carpet of dust three inches deep, which will prevent evaporation of moisture from the soil underneath, and then his corn can stand anything but the scorching hot winds. Some farmers do not plow in hot weather, fearing that the upturning of the soil may cause the loss of the wathe surface is plowed."

Wants a Stone Coffin.

Fearing that his body will be secured by ghouls if it was placed in an ordinary wooden coffin, Ephraim Mitchell an eccentric citizen residing near Kingston, Madison county, has contracted for a huge stone coffin. It is to be cut from Rockcastle county granite, and it will weigh a ton. Mr. Mitchel is seventy years old, but bids fair to live to be one hundred.

The prettiest scenery this season of the year is that along the line of the popular "Henderson Route." Almost the entire distance from Louisville to Henderson you are in full view of the Ohio river, in addition to this the elegant ballasts of the road makes it desirable to the traveler as it is almost free from
